

Content Distribution Network

Applications component instances and data handled by them are globally distributed to meet the access performance required by a global user group.

How can timely access to an application be ensured for a globally distributed user group?

