

Watchdog

Applications cope with failures automatically by monitoring and replacing application component instances if the provider-assured availability is insufficient.

How can applications automatically detect failing application components and handle their replacement?

