Resiliency Management Process

Application components are checked for failures and replaced automatically without human intervention.

How can the overall availability of an application be ensured automatically even if individual application component instances fail?