Dedicated Component

Components providing critical functionality are provided exclusively to tenants while still allowing other components to be shared between tenants.

How can application components that cannot be shared be integrated into a multi-tenant application?