Distributed Application

A cloud application divides provided functionality among multiple application components that can be scaled out independently.

How can application functionality be decomposed to be handled by separate application components?